

Sanaa Journal

African Arts :: Media :: Cultures

Editorial Policy

Sanaa: Journal of African Arts, Media and Cultures (Sanaa Journal) ISSN – 2507-7775 (ONLINE) is a bi-annual, peer reviewed journal aimed at providing a forum for intellectuals, artists, media and creative people within and outside Africa to debate and publish scholarly works in relation to Africa's arts, media and cultures.

Aim

- To publish issues related to Africa's arts, media and cultures which are not often covered from a scholarly perspective.
- To link contemporary arts, media and cultures to the historical past.
- To build and rejuvenate research interest in Africa's arts, media and cultures.

Scope

The journal seeks original research-based content from academics and media practitioners related to African arts, media and cultures. The journal publishes articles that display intellectual rigour and scholarly excellence in creative industries and innovations. Papers are invited from cultural heritage, innovations, intangible heritage, creative industries, theatre, film, radio, television, music, dance, sculpture, drawings, graphics, painting, internet, digital media and other direct related fields. The work embraced by the journal includes pageantry, community festivals, studio recordings, exhibitions, radio and TV shows, fashion, galas and celebrations. It also focuses on the review of related laws and policies. Inter-disciplinarity and multi-disciplinarity are key to this journal. Papers from the fields of humanities, social sciences, law, business, education, engineering, health sciences and on issues related to the scope of the journal are invited.

Journal Annual Plan

Month	Activities	Month
May	Call for papers	November
June	Call for papers	December
July	Call for papers/ Paper peer reviews	January
August	Paper peer reviews	February
September	Copy editing / Marketing and publicity	March
October	Uploading & Printing	April

Submission of Manuscripts

Authors are expected to read and comply with the information to authors. The manuscript should be prepared according to the APA referencing style and specifications of the Sanaa Journal's Policy. All manuscripts shall be subjected to a plagiarism checker. Only those manuscripts passing the plagiarism test will be processed for peer-review. Manuscripts can be articles, memories and reviews.